INTRODUCTION

This is the pilot issue of a proposed annual index to science fiction book reviews in professional science-fiction magazines, library journals, and some of the more widely circulated fanzines. The pilot issue actually indexes only two titles, ANALOG AND SCIENCE FICTION REVIEW. These titles were chosen simply because of availability.

Beginning in 1970, the Index will cover, as completely as possible, the following titles: AMAZING, ANALOG, FANTASTIC, FANTASY AND SCIENCE FICTION, GALAXY, IF, LUNA MONTHLY, SCIENCE FICTION REVIEW, LIBRARY JOURNAL, and PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. Other titles will be added as they come to the attention of the editor. At this time, no retrospective coverage of reviews is anticipated.

The purpose of the SCIENCE FICTION BOOK REVIEW INDEX is to identify and provide a means of access to science fiction and fantasy book reviews, and to reviews of books of interest to readers of this genre of literature. This access to book reviews should be of use both to the serious student of science-fiction and to the general reader.

EDITORIAL POLICY

Except for the correction of obvious errors, the bibliographic information is as given in the review. It is, therefore, in many cases incomplete and in some cases probably inaccurate.

Citations to reviews will be abbreviated as much as possible to conserve space. Each citation will consist of the following items, in order: Abbreviated title; volume; issue number; pages; month; year; reviewer. Abbreviations of magazine titles will follow those of existing indexes whenever possible.

Suggestions for other titles worthy of in-depth indexing for science-fiction and fantasy book reviews will be welcomed. Editors who wish to have their publications considered for indexing are requested to submit a sample copy for evaluation.

Notice of reviews which appear in titles other than those indexed in depth will be greatly appreciated by the editor, and will serve to greatly increase the value of the Index.
